“ We have wonderful memories with Bill over many, many years. He was always fun to be with. Bill and Ginny taught us the ropes in the RV world; we traveled to so many places across United States together...and Bill "inadvertantly" showed us how NOT to put gasoline in a diesel motor home. That was a traumatic situation, but Bill stayed calm and handled it well. We also traveled to Norway together, and took a road trip from Oslo to Bergen with several Norwegian relatives. Towards the end of the 10-day trip, we visited a famous museum in Lillehammer where they served "rømmegrøt" which is a traditional cream pudding and it had been talked about and raved about during the whole time, so we were really looking forward to eating that. Bill, being the generous person he was, wanted to treat the whole gang, not realizing it would wipe out his pocketbook, so he sheepishly reached out to his brother in law for help. We will miss Bill and his good humor, and appreciate the time we had together. In loving memory, Charles and Laila
